Art and Adventure in Denmark

On September 2nd my biking buddy and artist friend Peter Roos flew out of Boston to begin a long planned trip to Denmark. For Peter, this was a return to a place he'd been before; a place where he has relatives and friends. For me it was a different culture to investigate and an exciting opportunity to be somewhere that I had never been. Our goals and objectives were to spend our 12 days traveling by bicycle around the country visiting art museums & historic castles while recording our trip with photos, drawings or watercolors.

All in all, our journey was rich in adventure and Art! A glimpse of our trip in a few pictures appears below... as well as a map of our travels to the right. (The solid lines represent the routes that we rode by bike) The dotted lines show the routes where we used bus, train or ferry. In all we traveled 186± miles on bikes and visited 6 art museums, 3 historic castles, numerous old churches, 8 cities and many, many small villages.

In this bike-centric country thousands of people ride bicycles to work every day
